GUNS.

THEIR UNCERTAINTY.—SUGGESTIONS RELATIVE TO LOADING AND HANDLING FIRE ARMS.

We had found and brought down from the garret an old musket, said to have been used by our mutual great grandsire in the "Revolution." It had certainly not been used for ten or fifteen years. It was one of the old flint lock guns, and was now so very rusty that it was quite impossible to get the ramrod down the barrel. We were anxious to use it on a Fourth of July occasion, then close at hand.

First, we tried to wash it out by pouring hot water into the muzzle; but no amount of punching or churning would force water out at the priming-hole. Then we took the stock off, and determined to take out the breech-pin; but that was so rusted in, that we could not start it. Even kerosene oil had no effect on it. Having some vague ideas of the expansive power of heat, we now resolved to heat the base of the barrel red-hot and try what effect that would have. Accordingly, resting the muzzle across an old bench, we opened the door of the cooking-stove, in the kitchen, and put the breech end of the barrel in the stove and heaped the coals and embers on it. Presently it began to grow red; and we were about taking it out to thrust it in cold water, when there came an explosion which, there in the close kitchen, nearly split our heads, and put three slugs through the outside door—handsomely. Nor was this all, for the barrel, recoiling violently, passed through the stove, and knocked the other end out of the fire-box. My stars! what a scolding we got for that! This gun had lain there in the garret ten years, at least, perhaps double that time. Nobody then living in the house knew who had loaded it, or remembered anything about it.

It is my candid opinion that the person who leaves a gun in a house loaded, for any length of time, deserves to go to jail for a month. It does not do to trust to memory as to whether a gun is charged or not.

A few years ago, in company with two other young men, the writer called at the house of a friend to borrow a ducking-gun. It was brought out from a closet.

"Loaded?" said one of our number

"No."

"Sure?"

"O, yes;" and he blew in the muzzle

We all really thought that we heard air come out at the nipple.

"But the tube is rather foul," remarked the owner of the piece. He took a cap, placed it on the nipple, and snapped it. A tremendous report followed. The gun jumped out of his hands, and a heavy charge of shot raked the mantel shelf, breaking two large kerosene lamps, and passing on across the room, mortally wounded a venerable clock, which had been ticking calmly in a corner.

The temptation for a hunting party to carry their guns cocked, when close upon game, is very great, but it has led to many a fatal accident. In point of fact, there are few experienced sportsmen who, in the presence of large game, are cool enough to handle a cocked gun with safety to their fellow. And if this remark be true of professional sportsmen, carrying the best of English guns with Brazier locks, how much more is it true of boys with our cheap American or Belgian guns, the locks of which are rarely to be relied on.

So far as I am able to learn, three fourths of all the guns bought by our boys range in price from three to ten dollars; these are mostly imported guns, from Belgium and from France and Germany. Seven eights of all the accidents come from the imperfect action, or careless use, of the miserable little frauds, which by good rights never ought to have a grain of gunpowder brought near them. They only wonder is that they don't burst twice as often as they do. The reason is, probably, that the boys cannot afford large charges, and that they use a very poor, weak quality of a gunpowder. The writer confesses to a strong fellow-feeling for this great body of youthful sportsmen. His own first gun cost three dollars and fifty cents—bought at Fabri, at the age of eleven, and kept up in the dark loft of the pig-house.

Never carry a gun capped in a boat, or a carriage; and in the case of a breech-loader, the cartridges should always be withdrawn.

Three of the twenty three casualties above referred to occurred while loading. It is curious what absurd and perilous evolutions a person will sometimes perform when loading in a hurry, with game in sight. One of the writer's acquaintances used always to cap his gun first, when loading in haste, because, forsooth, it saved one motion; and he made use of a shot-belt, too! So that while pouring in the shot, he would necessarily have both barrels—with caps on the nipples—presented point blank at his stomach. And here I wish to express my humble opinion that a shot belt is not only an unsafe, but an unhandy equipment. This remark, of course, does not equally apply to a cartridge belt, such as are sold to accompany a breech-loading gun.

It is very difficult to give a set of rules for loading a gun, which apply in all cases and positions, and to all persons. But a few precautions may always be observed with profit. One of the first of these is, to always keep the muzzle pointing clear of your person. (I am speaking now of a muzzle loader, of course.) To secure this, a right handed person will find it easier to set the breech at the outside of his left foot, with the barrels pointing a little off, and at an angle of about sixty degrees with the ground.

A single-barrelled gun is always less dangerous than a double-barrel, both to load and to shoot. In loading a double-barrel gun in a hurry, the most vexatious mistakes often happen; such as getting both charges into the same barrel, or the shot all in one barrel and the powder in the other, in which case one barrel is of course a "dummy," and the other very liable to burst and blow your brains out, or at least give you a sound kick. Indeed, it is impossible to charge two barrels properly, without giving one's attention to it pretty closely. Yet a double-barrelled gun is so very much more efficient that it will always be preferred. A good rule is to always load from right to left; that is load the right first. Put in a charge of powder in the right barrel, wad and ram it, letting the ramrod stand in the barrel, till you want it to ram the left barrel. When this is done, let it stand in the left barrel till you have put shot in the right, and so on. Letting the ramrod stand in the barrel, in this way, is the best precaution against putting in double charges. Only be sure to take it out after pushing down the shot wad in the left barrel; else you may spit the game as well as shoot it.

There is yet another important precaution to be observed in shooting with a double-barrelled gun. On sighting game, one, of course, cocks both barrels. Supposing now that, as it oftenest the case, you only find it necessary to discharge the right barrel. Yet before going on you will wish to re-load the empty barrel. Always bear in mind that the left barrel is now at full cock; else the jar of re-loading the right barrel may very likely discharge it. This is especially true of guns with cheap locks. Indeed, one of the twenty-three accidents which I have made the text of my little sermon, occurred in this very way.—[Oliver Optic's.

A GREAT BANK. Apropos of the recent bank failures in New York, a correspondent draws a suggestive contrast between those shaky institutions which are now going under and the famous Chemical Bank, which is the soliest bank not only in New York, but in the world. This is taking a broad stretch, but none too extensive. Ten per cent. dividend per annum does very well, and some banks pay twenty per cent. Fifty per cent per annum is an almost unheard of dividend. The Chemical, however, does better than any of these figures. Its regular dividend for some years had been one hundred per cent. The explanation of this is found in the fact that the bank is doing an immense business on a small capital. The deposits of the Bank of Commerce, whose capital is about ten millions, are about the same as those of the Chemical Bank, whose capital is only $200,000. Hence, the owners of the last mentioned obtain as much profit as the owners of ten millions of the other stock. Each of these banks have about eight millions drawing interest. The Chemical Manufacturing Works were incorporated fifty years ago, with John Mason as president. The capital was $100,000 for the Chemical Works and $200,000 for banking. The manufacture of chemicals did not prove profitable, and, though this was the chief object of the enterprise, it was abandoned. The bank was opened and John Mason was president, with John Q. Jones as cashier. The bank did a very satisfactory business, though it reached no brilliant results until after Mr. Mason's death, which occurred in 1849. Since then it has been increasing in reputation and credit. Business has increased, and capitalists have sought it as a place of secure deposit. In this way the profits have grown in a steady proportion until a regular dividend of 100 per cent. is now declared. There are no large stockholders, the shares being divided among a fortunate circle. The quotations of value are about $1650 per share, the par value being $100, and there is a standing offer of $1600 from a man who, no doubt, expects to see it reach a value of $2000. A. T. Stewart is one of the fortunate stockholders in the Chemical Bank, which enjoys a large part of his deposits. Stewart always has a large balance, and a few such men would carry a bank on their shoulders. James Lennox is another stockholder and depositor. He has not desired any prominence in the management, but his nephew, Robert Lenox Kennedy, is one of the directors. Mr. Lenox keeps a large balance, and is a first class depositor. Commodore Vanderbilt keeps his railroad funds here, and this is a very valuable resource. The reason why these solid men cluster around this institution is because it is conducted on old-fashioned principles. It is safe.

HENRY WILSON.—Mr. Wilson is known chiefly to the readers of the Morning News as one who, under the cheap guise of philanthropy, made a fanatical war upon the southern people. In common with Horace Greeley, Sumner and old John Brown, it was the one purpose of his life to degrade the white man to the level of the negro. He was the bitter and unrelenting foe of the South, and under the specious plea of abolishing slavery, did all he could to place the white men of this section in bondage more galling than death. The only attribute of statesmanship to which he could lay claim was the energy that arises from the crude and cruel fanaticism that characterizes the leading men of New England, and he will be remembered chiefly as one who attempted to strike the chains of slavery from the African only to place them upon men of his own race and clime.—[Savannah News.

Newport Daily News.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1875.

THE DAY.

The President's message had a good effect on the standing of United States bonds in London.

Advertisements for the NEWS to be inserted promptly should be handed in as early in the day as possible.

It is reported that the Democrats will attempt to deprive General Sherman of his rank of general on the ground that he holds it illegally.

Colonel James O. Broadhead, a leading lawyer of St. Louis, has been selected to succeed General Henderson as special counsel in the whiskey-fraud cases in that city.

A case of dynamite, concealed in the personal baggage of a passenger about to leave for America, exploded at the wharf of the steamer Mosel, at Bremen, on Saturday. Sixty eight persons were killed outright and twenty five others wounded. The loss of life was principally among those who gathered on the wharf to bid adieu to friends embarking on the Mosel for New York.

Every subscriber to the DAILY NEWS is still at liberty to order the NEWPORT JOURNAL sent to the address of one person abroad for one month, free of charge. We are willing to send out one thousand free papers on this proposition and confidently expect to do so. Send in the name of son, brother, or friend, who has moved away, and will be pleased to hear from home.

DUPED WOMEN.

Nothing is so offensive to women as an insinuation that they are easily influenced by men, or that the very mildest persuasion is enough to induce them to put on the matrimonial yoke. Promptly as they usually resent any generalizations about their sex they will not find fault with the sweeping character of this remark. It is only when the one true man comes begging, beseeching, wearing himself out with importunity that the woman lets herself down from her high pinnacle to his level and vowing she will ne'er consent consents to bless him with herself. Were this true the amount of misery in the world would be greatly reduced. The frequency with which women are duped and the apparent ease with which it is done suggest that this statement is not entirely correct. The facility with which professional bigamists carry on their business is evidence to the contrary.

Within a few days, for instance, a partial biography of Mathew B. Van Ostrand has been published which shows the amount of havoc that a shrewd man of good address can make, and with what little hesitation or enquiry women will risk everything. In 1868 Van Ostrand went to Lockport, an entire stranger. He had committed a fraudulent failure, and deserted a wife and two children. But Lockport people, male and female, do not seem to be disagreeably inquisitive. He obtained a position of trust in a financial institution and in a few months became the husband of the acknowledged belle of the city. As there was no elopement we are forced to suppose that this dangerous haste was countenanced by the young lady's friends.

After all this had happened his antecedents became known and he had to flee from the city. He went to Columbus, Ohio, and shortly became engaged to the daughter of a wealthy and prominent citizen. The wedding was to have been one that would make Columbus society open its eyes. Fortunately, before the appointed day he was detected in a forgery. He was sentenced to the state prison for four years. The lady he was engaged to died of shame, but was fortunate to get rid of Van Ostrand even at that price. Of course our friend was pardoned out at the end of two years. The world is full of fools who are pained to see men punished for their rascality, and are prompt to petition executives for pardons.

With such theological education as he could pick up in a penitentiary Van Ostrand, alias the Rev. Amos Ryerson, went to the town of Delaware, Ohio, and was soon settled over a Presbyterian church. The antecedents of a clergyman are pretty easy to ascertain, but neither men nor women in Delaware cared to make any enquiries, and in October 1874 Van Ostrand married the estimable daughter of his venerable predecessor in the pulpit. Last August it was discovered that he had ruined three young ladies, members of families prominent in the village and church. Of course Van Ostrand fled again.

He went at once to Springfield, Ohio, and resumed his own name. This was in August, and by the 27th of September he had persuaded a wealthy young widow to marry him. Soon after the nuptials he was exposed, and fled to Canada. He was tracked by the friends of his last victim who became insane when she learned that the man she married after a six weeks acquaintance was a knave, and we are happy to say that he was betrayed to the officers of the law by a woman to whom he had laid siege, but who did not surrender to him.

Van Ostrand's career after he left his family lasted seven years. Two of them he spent in state prison. During the other five years he managed to persuade some well connected woman to marry him every fifteen months on an average. Mrs. Livermore wants to know what to do with girls. One excellent thing would be to teach them how to take care of themselves and not to marry men whose histories they know for only a few weeks.

EXPORTING COTTON.

News was received at Fall River Saturday afternoon of the sale in England of 25,000 pieces of cloth for the Fall River mills. This caused much rejoicing as it takes off the greater portion of the surplus. Manchester is the cotton center of the universe and sales are made there for all parts of the world. American cloths sold in England are usually sold for consumption in Asia, Africa, or South America, but of course they come in competition with English goods as much as if they were consumed in Great Britain.

A good deal of unfounded rejoicing has been caused by the recent sales in considerable quantities of American cottons in England. As a temporary measure it is undoubtedly a great relief to the mills in this country that are burdened by great stocks of goods that are the result of overstocking the market. But nothing has yet occurred to show that American manufacturers have entered on a period of competition with Manchester in the supply of cotton cloth to India, China, Africa and South America.

It is well known that the sales of American goods in England have been made at very low rates, at cost or below it, simply to get rid of goods that have been made faster than Americans can wear them out. It is simply by cutting the weavers down to 18 and 20 cents a cut, and even then without profit, that Fall River and Lowell can export goods in any quantities. As soon as the American market recovers prices will go up to figures which will prevent any exportation.

The fact is that the same protective tariff that shuts out foreign goods shuts out foreign markets. The tariff makes machinery cost more here than in England, and it raises the cost of living and therefore the price of labor. In shutting out English goods we have shut out to a large extent foreign markets. We can export only by selling below cost. By thus shutting ourselves up to a home market we make ourselves liable to more violent changes of the market than if we were in connection with the world's trade. Free trade enables a country to manufacture cheaply and therefore to export.

If there is a glut in China such a country can export to India; what isn't needed at home can be exported year by year, instead of accumulating in ware houses, and supply adjusts itself to demand with no sudden shock to trade.

The most encouraging thing that we learn in connection with these English sales is that American cotton cloth is far superior to its Manchester rival.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE ASBURY TWINS.—By Sophie May, author of "Our Helen," "Little Prudy Stories," "Dotty Dimple Stories," "Little Flyaway Series," etc. Illustrated by Miss L. B. Humphrey. Boston, Lee & Shepard; Newport, Charles E. Hammett, Jr.

The Asbury twins and their friends are Americans living in Paris. The twins are rather entertaining girls, but they have a little tendency to be loud. They go by the elegant nicknames of Vic and Van. The former's name is Victoria and the latter's is sometimes represented to be Vandolia, and sometimes Evangeline. They have a friend whose given name is Columbus. He goes by the name of Clum. His surname scarcely ever appears. These young women talk in the paroxysmal manner in which real young women sometimes talk. Adjectives are generously used, and boys who are given to slang will be delighted to learn that Vic's reply to one of Van's remarks was, "Yum! Yum!" Both the young ladies flirt and the book contains some engagements precipitately formed and calmly broken when the mood was over. The book is calculated to do a great deal of good in the way of accustoming young ladies to slang, something they never use, and banishing from their minds those foolish ideas that they invariably have, that flirting is improper, and that an engagement is an affair of some seriousness if not sacredness. The illustrations are good, and the story will undoubtedly be found interesting by many young ladies.

FALLING OFF IN MARRIAGE.—Within the last few years the marriages in the lower classes have become fewer, and in the upper comparatively rare, owing to the depression in business and the expensiveness of housekeeping. The man would like to be married, but he cannot see his way financially, and is obliged to restrain his matrimonial tendencies. The imprudent or much loving man does it, and the chances are two to one that he gets into difficulty. The general abstention in the way of marriage naturally has a corrupting influence, for man's passions are strong and the flesh is weak. Attractions and forces bring the men and women together in spite of themselves, and consequences result therefrom not necessary to describe. In a well-regulated society marriage should be within easy reach of those who want to marry; that is, the wants of the couple should be easily supplied in the money they possess or in the work which they can perform with their own heads and hands. If they have neither capital nor capacity for work, the union sanctioned by law is denied them. In this case the passive nature of the woman may contain itself within the bounds of a well ordered life in accordance with the principles she has been taught. The positive nature of the man is not so easily curbed and held in subjection, and it asserts itself in a way that tends to increase the number of that body of dissolute women which marches close in the rear of civilization. This lawless legion, in a word, grows in the same ratio as the number of marriages decreases, and recruits are being constantly added to it through love, misery, and the passions of men without marital ties.—[Albert Rhodes, in the Galaxy.

LITERARY HUSBANDS.—Leo interrupted the discourse with a pertinent question: "Do what Mr. Dale thinks great men, such as professional men, make the best husbands? Are they most worthy of the beings whose faces are white and eyes black and that can write poetry?"

"No," said Heinrich, "the student, or the preacher, or the lawyer does not reveal the most of real merit as a domestic man. The habit of study injures the marriage tie. It chills the soul and often begets a vanity that condemns the wife to the life of a drudge or a nurse. She is either put to silence by the superior wisdom of her lord, or else she is doctoring him as an invalid, wondering all over the neighborhood what there is that is good for her great husband's gout or dyspepsia. Here is the tomb of that man now."—[A Tale of Brown Bread.

MILL AFFAIRS.—The Perry mill has shut down for a few days in consequence of the addition of a new feed-water heater and purifier. The owners of the Aquidneck and Perry mills have given their weavers two weeks' notice that hereafter the price of weaving will be twenty two cents a cut instead of twenty five cents. The rate will still be a little higher than it is in Fall River and the north part of the state.

FIRE AT GOV. VAN ZANDT'S.—About half-past seven o'clock Saturday evening fire was discovered in a chimney in Gov. Van Zandt's house and the telegraphic alarm was struck, supplemented by a general ringing of church bells. The whole fire department turned out with commendable promptness, but their services were not required. The fire was confined to the chimney and though it looked very threatening for a few minutes it was extinguished without assistance from the engines. The damage was trifling.

FROM THE CHURCHES.

The Rev. Messrs. Kettell of Zion church and Peet of Emmanuel church exchanged pulpits yesterday morning.

The praise meeting at the Thames street Methodist Episcopal church last evening was well attended. The Sunday school participated.

The Rev. I. S. Jones of the Christian church, Portsmouth, preached yesterday morning at the Unitarian church.

The Rev. W. F. Whitcher preached at the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday a sermon on the relation of evangelists to pastors on which subject he read an essay this morning at the minister's meeting. Mr. Whitcher's view is that spasmodic efforts under evangelists are liable to injure the influence of the pastor and the every day working power of the church. This applies only to cases in which the evangelists labor in particular connection with one church.

Yesterday morning the Rev. J. P. Taylor preached at the United Congregational church a sermon in behalf of the American Board, his subject being the superiority of Christianity to Mohammedanism. In the evening there was an interesting and well attended Sunday school concert and at the prayer meeting following the concert the lecture room was crowded.

HOW SOME CHARITY MONEY WAS SPENT.

A few days ago a benevolent lady called on the proprietor of one of our meat markets and gave him the name of a family living in the lower part of the city who were in great want. The dispenser of steaks and roasts at once sent to the family a fore quarter of lamb. The same lady also secured $5 for the relief of her destitute proteges from a charitable fund which is applied to the relief of people who are too honest to steal and too proud to beg. The suffering family was delighted, and the benevolent lady was almost overwhelmed with thanks. The next day the object of charity went out shopping with the $5 which had been given her to keep her family from suffering. For her son she bought a drum, and for her daughter a muff and tippet. She then went home and borrowed from a neighbor a pair of shoes for the daughter and the next day sent her to Fall River to visit a relative. The benevolent lady who exerted herself to keep this poor woman and her children from starving and freezing is rather disgusted. The worst feature of this case is that it will make benevolent people less willing to give to persons who are suffering, and who would make a good use of anything given to them.

The Hill Trial at Milwaukee.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 12.

The trial of Hill, in the United States court, was continued yesterday. Charles E. Marsh, agent for the Evansville and Crawfordsville Railroad, said he made false entries of whiskey shipped by the Binghams, for which he received $600 a month. Philip B. Erwine, gauger at Evansville, testified to having seen Julius Kaufman hand Hill an envelope at the rectifying house of the Binghams which Kaufman afterwards said contained defendant's pay. John E. Phillips, gauger at Patoka, said the Binghams named over a number of government officers of whom they need have no fear, as they would not peach, and among those mentioned was the defendant Hill. James T. Pringle, railroad agent and telegraph operator at Patoka, testified that the Binghams paid him $500 per month for his assistance in shipping crooked whiskey. Hiram B. Snyder testified that in 1874 John W. Bingham assured him that the ring was safe, as Babcock, the President's secretary, was in it.

Burbank and Reynolds convicted.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 11.

At eleven o'clock tonight the jury in the Burbank and Reynolds case brought in a verdict of guilty. There will be no more criminal prosecutions in the whiskey cases till the January term.

Babcock Bailed.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.

Babcock this morning gave bail for his appearance in St. Louis in $7000.

PRESIDENT GRANT'S MESSAGE.

Effect of the Document on American Bonds in London.

LONDON, Dec. 11.

The message of President Grant has been chiefly influential in determining the purposes of the government concerning the complications in Cuba. It has outwardly removed the existing suspicion that trouble was impending. It has also relieved American bonds from a pressure and a heaviness that was felt by those who are engaged in their manipulation. It may be added, however, that these securities are still feverishly held, because of the suggestions of the President concerning the school question and the opening of new political issues. On the whole the message has been well received, and especially that portion of it which treats of the finances of the government and the possibility that, at not a distant day, the currency of the country will be reduced to a basis that will correspond with that of other specie paying communities.

FALL RIVER.—The result of the suit pending in the Marine Court, Boston, between the owners of the schooner J. Clark, badly injured while coming into Bennett's dock, coal laden, and M. T. Bennett, Jr., & Co., is reported to be in favor of the complainants, the judge to whom it was referred awarding $6,000 as damages.—[News.

THE VALUE OF SHADE TREES IN CITIES.—Some of the California papers are finding a lesson in the recent destructive conflagration at Viaginia City, Nevada, concerning the value of shade trees in cities. The Sacramento Record-Union bears testimony that in that city disastrous and widespread conflagrations have frequently been averted, almost solely, through the agency of shade trees. The trees serve to prevent the passage of burning debris through the air—the embers, which would otherwise be blown from house to house and from block to block, being caught in the upper branches, and falling thence harmlessly to the ground. In the Summer, trees act as screens between houses and blocks, moderating the heat of fires, and interposing a barrier which is seldom passed by the flames. When we add to these very practical considerations the value of trees in breaking the force of the wind, enhancing the beauty of a city, and affording a grateful shade to pedestrians, it will be seen that trees, planted along city streets, pay for themselves many times over and in many different ways. A community which acts on the suggestions thus enforced not only ministers to its æsthetic tastes and promotes culture and the love of the beautiful, but erects a barrier against fires, checks the spread of conflagrations, and "puts money in its purse" in one of the simplest and most common-sense ways conceivable.

The Evil Fruits of Weak Digestion.

There is no pathological fact more clearly ascertained than the most formidable phases of nervous disease are directly traceable to imperfect digestion. Insomnia, with its train of direful consequences, proceeds more frequently from weakness of the stomach than from any other cause. Mere sedatives are powerless to cure nervousness, and soon cease to palliate its symptoms. The true way to strengthen the nervous system is to invigorate the digestive and assimilative organs, upon whose unobstructed action its equilibrium is absolutely dependent. The daily use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will do more to brace and soothe the weakened and irritated nerves, and induce sound, refreshing sleep—nature's grand catholicon,—than all the so-called nervines to be found in the pharmacopœia or out of it. A wineglassful of the Bitters should be taken before each meal. dec8-nkj

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

Will be found to possess those qualities necessary to the total eradication of all bilious attacks, prompt to start the secretions of the liver, and give a healthy tone to the entire system. Indeed, it is no ordinary discovery in medical science to have invented a remedy for these stubborn complaints, which develop all the results produced by a heretofore free use of calomel, a mineral justly dreaded by mankind, and acknowledged to be destructive in the extreme to the human system. That the properties of certain vegetables comprise all the virtues of calomel without its injurious tendencies, is now an admitted fact, rendered indisputable by scientific researches; and those who use the Mandrake Pills will be fully satisfied that the best medicines are those provided by nature in the common herbs and roots of the fields.

These pills open the bowels and correct all bilious derangements without salivation or any of the injurious effect of calomel or other poisons. The secretion of bile is promoted by these pills, as will be seen by the altered color of the stools, and disappearing of the sallow complexion and cleansing of the tongue.

Ample directions for use accompany each box of pills.

Prepared only by J. H. Schenck & Son, at their principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, and for sale by all druggists and dealers. Price 25 cents per box. dec6 1m

GENERAL NEWS

THE WICKFORD ROUTE.

Shore Line Train off the Track at Westerly.—Mails Delayed.—No One Hurt.

[Special Dispatch to the News by the Western Union Line.]

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 13.

The train on the Providence and Stonington road ran off the track at Westerly last night, caused by an obstruction on the track. Therefore no mails will reach Newport by the Wickford route this morning.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Bill for Distributing the Geneva Award.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.

The bill introduced in the Senate on Thursday, by Mr. Conklin, to repeal the twelfth section of the act organizing the court to distribute the Geneva award so as to allow insurance companies to participate in that award, is not intended to allow the claims of foreign companies. When the bill organizing the court was being perfected by the Senate judiciary committee two years ago, one of the reasons urged for inserting the twelfth section, excluding insurance companies, was that stockholders in many of our companies were foreigners, and it would not be proper to allow them the benefit of the award.

A Bill to Extend the Time of the Alabama Claims Court.

Mr. Starkweather has prepared a bill which meets with the approval of the Secretary of State and commissioners, extending the duration of the court of commissioners of the Alabama claims to the 22d of July, 1879, and also extending the power of the clerk of said court until the 22d of September, for the purpose of closing his accounts and depositing the records. The measure is intended only to cover cases now pending before the court and does not provide for any additional cases.

The Democrats Raise a Question as to the Presiding Officer of the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.

Prominent Democrats are boldly claiming that in view of the death of the Vice President, if Gen. Grant should now die, Mr. Kerr would become President by virtue of his office as Speaker. There have been several consultations over this subject. Their claim is based on the fact that under the law, the Speaker of the House succeeds in case of the death of the President, and Vice President, if there be no President of the Senate, and that the election of Mr. Ferry at the last session was not sufficient to now make him President of the Senate, within the meaning of the law.

The Removal of Chief Justice Dunne of Arizona.

The removal of Chief Justice Dunne, of Arizona, yesterday, presents a new phase of the school question. He is a Catholic and has urged bitter war on the public schools for some time, and a large body of citizens, including many prominent Catholics, have asked his removal. Upon hearing this, Dunne went to the Attorney General saying he would prefer to be removed for this cause rather than some others urged against him, and the Attorney General replied in substance that he might consider the change made on the ground he indicated.

The Pacific Mail Cases Reinstated.

It has now turned out that the Pacific Mail cases were dismissed here by mistake, and yesterday the attorney for the company appeared and said he had been misled as to the desire of the company, by false representations made to him, and asked to have the cases reinstated, which the court granted.

Henderson's Removal.

Public sentiment here appears to be against the action of the administration in Henderson's case. Unfavorable judgment was of course expected from the Democrats and all other enemies of the President, and aspersions of the President's motives from those quarters are likely to have little effect, but there are not a few Republicans who regard the act as a serious error. While it is generally admitted that Henderson went outside of the strict line of his duty in using the language obnoxious to the President, the point is made that the offence should, in the present peculiar condition of affairs, be overlooked. These criticisms come not simply from the disaffected, but from men whose soundness as Republicans is unquestioned, and who are above the suspicion of hostility toward the President. The fact must not be lost sight of for a moment, however, that adverse comments from this source apply solely to the question of policy. Not the slightest reflection, expressed or implied, on the motives of the President has been made.

The Regular Army.

The Democratic plan for the reduction of the army comprises the preliminary movement for the abolition of interior posts and consolidation of the entire force on the frontier. The idea is to show in this way that a smaller force will be ample for all really necessary service. It is said, too, that an attempt will be made to deprive Sherman of the rank of general, on the ground that he holds it illegally.

FIRE ALARM REGULATIONS.

To send out an alarm.

Any person who discovers a fire is requested to immediately give the alarm by crying fire, and, going to the box nearest the fire, to send out a general alarm by procuring the key, unlocking the box, and strictly putting the hook down, once only; then closing the door, being careful to see that it is locked, and returning the key.

The person sending out an alarm from a box is requested to remain near said box until the first engine arrives, to direct the firemen to the exact locality of the fire.

Cautions.

Never pull a box if the small gong inside is striking or the machinery of the box is heard running.

Do not pull a box for a fire seen at a distance, or unless you are aware of the locality of a fire.

Key holders are requested not to allow their keys to be taken except by responsible parties.

Bell Ringers.

Bell ringers are engaged to ring the following church bells in connection with the telegraph alarm :—

The First and North Baptist, United Congregational and Emmanuel with instructions to ring their respective bells for five minutes immediately after the telegraphic alarm has completed its four rounds and then to repeat eight times the number of the box from which the alarm is sent.

Recall.

Nine blows upon the telegraphic alarm bells will indicate that the fire is out and that the services of the department are not required.

Testing the Apparatus.

One stroke on the bells by the telegraphic alarm will simply indicate that the apparatus is in good order.

LOCATION OF BOXES AND KEYS.

A CRITIC CRITICISED.

Returning from his journey, Andersen published a small book containing a description of "The West Coast of Jutland," and then went to Germany, where he became acquainted with the famous authors Tieck and Chamisso. He had now no longer any royal stipend, and had to write constantly in order to support himself; and as no kind of writings are so profitable as dramas and comedies, he undertook to adapt Walter Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor" and "Kenilworth" to the stage, receiving the assistance of two musicians, Weyse and Hartmann, who composed the music. But the Danes are very fond of their own little country, and believe that there is no literature in the world equal to their own. Therefore they ridiculed this attempt of Andersen's to introduce a foreign novel-writer upon their stage. The critics all turned against him; people, whether they knew him or not, had the impudence to lecture him, and some even made wry faces at him in the street. Even his previous works were now condemned. Once it even happened that a clergyman attacked his poems at an evening party where Andersen himself was present, passing over everything that was good, and only counting, for instance, how many times the word "beautiful" was repeated on every page. At last, a little girl, six years old, who had been following in the book, and had found that almost every word had been attacked, turned to the clergyman and said, quite innocently: "There is one word yet which you have not scolded about. It is 'and.'"—[St. Nicholas for December.

A WONDERFUL MACHINE.—In most English locomotive works you will see also the Nasmyth steam hammer, a mighty giant in power, but as docile as a lamb under the touch of a master hand. It is an immense shaft of iron, sliding up and down in a great wooden frame, and regulated in its movements so that it can strike a hard or soft blow, as the engineer who directs it may wish. A heated shaft of iron a foot thick can be crushed, or a tack may be driven by its blows. About twenty years ago, the prime minister of England, Lord John Russell, visiting the railway works at Manchester, was invited to eat a boiled egg for luncheon. Before giving him the egg, the master of the works put it in a small wine glass and placed both under the great steam hammer. The engineer set the giant at work; down rushed the shaft with the rapidity of a lightning flash and struck the egg, but so perfectly was the hammer regulated that the blow merely chipped the shell, crushing neither glass nor egg.—[St. Nicholas for December.

A WEATHER PREDICTION.—Prof. Tice, according to the Springfield (Ill.) Journal, made the following prediction a few weeks ago: "The coming Winter certainly will not be an agreeable one. First, cold, really so! will set in about the 28th of November and continue for nearly a week. It will be warmer about the 5th of December and then cold for another week. It will be warmer from the 15th to the 18th, and then cold again. About the 26th it will be warm and about the 30th cold—very cold—until Jan. 6; then warmer to the 15th; then very cold to the 20th; then warmer for a few days, followed by cold weather till about the close of the month. The month of February will be very boisterous, generally warm, but short spells of intensely cold weather."

R. H. EDDY.

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 70 State St., opp. Kilby St., Boston.

AFTER AN EXTENSIVE PRACTICE of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms, with despatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse."

CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office." EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part, leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges."
